Tulsa author Jennifer Latham's novel "Dreamland Burning," written for the young-adult audience, is about the 1921 Tulsa Rac

Local authors Jennifer Latham and Julia Thomas, along with cookbook author and memoirist David Leite, will be the guests of honor for “Chapters: A Casual Evening of Books, Bards and Bites,” set for 6:30 p.m. Sept. 7 at the Hardesty Regional Library, 8316 E. 93rd St.

The evening provides readers with the chance to meet and chat with favorite authors while helping raise money and awareness for Tulsa City-County Library’s Ruth G. Hardman Adult Literacy Service.

Cost is $50 per person, and the deadline for reservations is Aug. 31. To register, call 918-549-7494.

Latham published her first novel, a young-adult mystery called “Scarlett Under Cover,” in 2015. In February 2017, she published “Dreamland Burning,” a carefully researched and sensitively written novel about the Tulsa Race Riot. Latham lives in Tulsa.

Leite is a memoirist, cookbook author, food writer and publisher of the James Beard Award-winning website Leite’s Culinaria. His newest book, “Notes on a Banana: A Memoir of Food, Love, and Manic Depression,” was published in April 2017. His first book, “The New Portuguese Table,” won the 2010 IACP Julia Child Award, as well as garnering other distinctions. Leite is a frequent television guest and a correspondent and guest host for National Public Radio’s “The Splendid Table.”

Thomas is a graduate of Northeastern State University and an educator. She published her first novel, a standalone British mystery called “The English Boys,” in 2016. Her second novel, “Penhale Wood,” was published in July 2017. She lives in Broken Arrow with her husband, Will Thomas, author of the Barker and Llewelyn mystery series.
