When Sperry schools discontinued art classes due to budget cuts, the Judy Z. Kishner Library stepped up to fill the void by offering kids and teens a variety of art-based, after-school programs, including sketching, drawing, acrylic, watercolor and pour painting, sculpture, crochet, collage, and a host of other do-it-yourself projects.

“There are so many talented kids in this community. Our goal is to give them the space, materials and support to be creative and develop skills they are interested in,” said David Morrison, Kishner Library manager. “The response has been great and the art classes are now one of our busiest and most requested programs.”

Currently, Sperry youth are creating artwork depicting what life is like in Oklahoma to reciprocate with Oklahoma’s sister state of Kyoto Prefecture, Japan. Their artwork will be displayed side by side children’s artwork from Kyoto at Tulsa City-County Library’s annual Asian-American Festival on June 22 at Martin Regional Library. After the festival, it will be sent to the Oklahoma Secretary of State to officially send to Kyoto.

“This is our first year to participate in the Kyoto-Oklahoma cultural art exchange and we are excited to show what our community can do,” said Morrison. “This type of international art exchange is a great opportunity to see how important art and creativity can be to a community.”

In addition to the free art and craft programs, the Kishner Library regularly offers Build A Reader storytimes, movie showings, Teen Lounge events, Web Tales With Spider-Man and other fun programs throughout the year. Check the listings in the monthly event guide for more details.

With its Western flair and down-home charm, the Kishner Library provides Tulsa City-County Library customers a unique experience sure to please the entire family. On a hot summer day, you can catch a cool breeze on the library’s front stoop while listening to tree frogs trilling and cicada choruses shrilling. You can even saddle up your horse and trot on down to the library, as there is a hitching post near the front door under a big shade tree, close by the KATY Trail. While inside the library, you will find an amazing collection of books and media, including a large Native American collection, as well as a newly renovated children’s area, which now features a new interactive play wall, created by the Burgeon Group, to provide a colorful learning experience for children and toddlers.

The Tulsa City-County Library opened the Kishner Library in 2008 after the small town outgrew its previous location in a renovated small house. Tulsa philanthropist and longtime library supporter Henry Zarrow donated the majority of the funding for the library and named it after his daughter, Judy Z. Kishner, to recognize her hometown library and honor her commitment to literacy. Judy served more than 20 years on the library commission, as well as the Tulsa Library Trust board.

You don’t have to live in Sperry to use the Kishner Library. Plan a fun Saturday with the family by visiting the library located at 10150 N. Cincinnati Ave. Just head north on Peoria Avenue, pass through Turley and drive another 5 miles until you get to Sperry. The library is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, noon to 8 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
