9:30 a.m.-1 p.m. • Learn how to start your family history research and discover the steps, strategies and records useful to begin your search.

Hidden Gems in the U.S. Census

2:30-4 p.m. • Learn how to dig into census records for detailed information on your family and discover how the census can expand your search into other useful records.

SATURDAY, JULY 13

Is Your Family Tree Broken?

Presented by Genealogist Mark Lowe

9:30-10:30 a.m. • Feeling trapped with nowhere to go? Bad, weak or missing evidence all contribute to misleading research. Review your research, sharpen your techniques, evaluate your sources and map a new course.

Religious Publications That Spread the Light

Presented by Genealogist Mark Lowe

10:45-11:45 a.m. • Learn about online resources that can help you sharpen your focus on your frontier ancestors and their neighbors. Case studies will paint a clearer picture.

Researching Colonial Virginia and Kentucky From Home

Presented by Genealogist Mark Lowe

1:30-2:30 p.m. • Learn about records for researching colonial Virginia and Kentucky, including the development of Kentucky County, Va., into the Commonwealth of Kentucky in 1792.

Expanding the Details From Published County Histories

Presented by Genealogist Mark Lowe

2:45-3:45 p.m. • County histories were solicited by subscription and required a fee for inclusion, but they often include valuable family details, biographical sketches and useful information.

SUNDAY, JULY 14

Finding Fact, Family Stories and Documentation

Presented by Genealogist Mark Lowe

1:30-4 p.m. • Learn details about your ancestor's neighborhood, using census records, manuscripts, gossip columns and land records. Document the people with whom they worked, prayed, fought and married.
