WELCOME TO YOUR LIBRARY

National Library Week (April 4-10, 2021) is a time to celebrate our nation's libraries, library workers' contributions, and promote library use and support.

During the pandemic, library workers continue to exceed their communities' demands and adapt resources and services to meet their users' needs during these challenging times. Whether people visit in person or virtually, libraries offer endless opportunities to transform lives through education and lifelong learning.

TCCL Remembers: Commemorating Tulsa's 1921 Race Massacre

Fireside Chat With Author Robin DiAngelo

Thursday, April 22 • 6-7:30 p.m.

New York Times bestselling author Robin DiAngelo joins us via Zoom to discuss her book "White Fragility: Why It's So Hard for White People to Talk About Racism." Described by author Michael Eric Dyson as a "vital, necessary and beautiful book," "White Fragility" has played a key role in the growing antiracism movement. DiAngelo examines the way white fragility reinforces racist structures and strives to equip readers with strategies for engaging in constructive cross-racial dialogue. A Q&A will follow. Register online at www.tulsalibrary.org/events or email register@tulsalibrary.org to receive a Zoom invite for this event. Sponsored by the Tulsa Library Trust.

TCCL Remembers: Commemorating Tulsa's 1921 Race Massacre
Panel Discussion: Who Watches the Watchmen?

Thursday, April 29 • 7-8:30 p.m.

Join us for a Zoom discussion with several writers from HBO's "Watchmen" series, as well as the comics' curator from OKPOP. The panel will discuss the show and its relation to the Tulsa Race Massacre. The "Watchmen" is based on Alan Moore's graphic novel of the same name. "Set in an alternate timeline where masked vigilantes are treated as outlaws, 'Watchmen' embraces the nostalgia of the original groundbreaking graphic novel ... while attempting to break new ground of its own," according to HBO. Register online at www.tulsalibrary.org/events or email register@tulsalibrary.org to receive a Zoom invite. Sponsored by the Tulsa Library Trust.

Tech Talk: DIY Personal Digital Archives – Preservation Week
