Reynolds is the New York Times bestselling author of "All American Boys" and other works for young adult and middle-age audiences. "As a Black man and white man, both writers and educators, we came together to co-write a book about how systemic racism and police brutality affect the lives of young people in America, in order to create an important, unique and honest work that would give young people and the people who educate them a tool for having these difficult but absolutely vital conversations," said Reynolds about his book "All American Boys," co-written with Brendan Kelly. See the live award presentation here: www.youtube.com/tulsalibrary. ### Collinsville Book Discussion

Tuesday, May 11 • 12:30-1:30 p.m.

Read Pulitzer Prize-winning "The Black Count" by Tom Reiss and then join us on Zoom us for a lively discussion. Email cv@tulsalibrary.org for Zoom invite. General Alex Dumas is a man almost unknown today, yet his story is strikingly familiar — because his son, the novelist Alexandre Dumas, used his larger-than-life feats as inspiration for such classics as "The Count of Monte Cristo" and "The Three Musketeers." But, hidden behind General Dumas' swashbuckling adventures was an even more incredible secret: He was the son of a Black slave — who rose higher in the white world than any man of his race would before our own time. Born in Saint-Domingue (now Haiti), Alex Dumas made his way to Paris, where he rose to command armies at the height of the Revolution — until he met an implacable enemy he could not defeat. "The Black Count" is simultaneously a riveting adventure story, a lushly textured evocation of 18th-century France and a window into the modern world's first multiracial society. For adults.

TCCL Remembers: Commemorating Tulsa's 1921 Race Massacre Friendship Mattered Then! Friendship Matters Now! – A Talk With Author Clifton Taulbert

Tuesday, May 11 • 6-7:30 p.m.

Join us via Zoom for an inspiring presentation from Clifton Taulbert, author of "Eight Habits of the Heart: Embracing the Values That Build Strong Communities." For 36 hours in 1921, friendship lost its way. Great harm was done to people and property. Black Wall Street disappeared in billowing clouds of smoke. Dreams were shattered and some forever. According to Clifton Taulbert, the embrace of genuine friendship cannot restore the lost past, but it can ensure a different future ... one where 1921 will not be repeated and where all are respected, affirmed and included. "Over the past few months of this year, the history of Tulsa 1921 has been revisited as scores of people ... writers, young people, dancers, lawyers, movies, books, students and librarians all lending their voices as history to be taught and lessons to be learned. We are all in search for that more perfect union — a way of living together that requires friendship. We must not allow friendship to lose its way." Register online at www.tulsalibrary.org/events or email register@tulsalibrary.org to receive a Zoom invite for this event. Sponsored by the Tulsa Library Trust. For all ages.
