

Love

When I think of you from time to time my heart swells with something I can't describe .

It starts to flutter, starts to pound. I can't help but smile when you're around.

I look for you when I enter a room or when I know you're coming soon.

I love your bright smile,

I love your contagious laugh

I love it when you tease

I love the way you care with ease

I don't feel burdened, I don't feel weary,

I just feel light, just feel easy,

I don't have to carry the world when you're near

I don't have to be strong I can just play along

I don't think I truly knew just how much space in my heart was for you

No matter how hard I try can't forget though I should sense the reject

But I don't feel heavy when you're around

I can breath, I feel at ease

What am I to do with you running around my mind I can't misplace you and I'm running outta time

I know I should just move on but everytime I see you my heart goes on pause

It starts to flutter, starts to pound

I can't help but smile when you're around

I don't think I truly knew how much space in my heart was just for you...

It starts to flutter, starts to pound

I can't help but smile when you're around

... No matter how hard I try I can't forget though I should sense the reject

The pounding I mentioned earlier, I think I found what has made me feel so peculiar

A word they call LOVE...