Where the past meets the future: TCCL returns to Greenwood

For more than a century, libraries have been a part of Greenwood. It began in 1917, when modest library services were offered from a small storefront on city-owned land. In 1924, just three years after the Tulsa Race Massacre, a resilient community opened the Greenwood Library at 543 E. Cameron St. and then moved to the grounds of George Washington Carver School in 1932. Over the decades, library service evolved with the community. The Greenwood Library was replaced by the Seminole Hills Library in 1967 under the leadership of Mrs. Freddie Rudisill. The branch was renamed the Freddie Martin Rudisill Regional Library in her honor when it moved to a larger facility on North Hartford Avenue in 1976. A genealogy collection was added in 1979 but was moved in 1997, making space for what would become the African American Resource Center a year later.

In 2026, TCCL's north regional library has evolved again. The new building at 1017 N. Greenwood Ave. brings the past and future together in spaces that preserve Greenwood's history while offering new opportunities to create what comes next.

The community gathered to celebrate Rudisill Regional Library's grand opening on Oct. 3. Following a ribbon-cutting ceremony, all ages enjoyed Maker Space activities, library tours, a kid-friendly concert and musical storytime featuring Miss Holly and her ukulele, and limited-edition gifts like themed library cards and a magnet.

▲ The BOK Harmony Hall provides one of the largest event spaces at TCCL. With a balcony overlooking downtown Tulsa, audiovisual capabilities and a catering kitchen, the flexible space can accommodate up to 450 guests or be divided into two smaller rooms and can be rented for community gatherings, receptions, galas, fundraisers and other special events.

Reconnecting to the past is especially prominent in the Keith Jemison African American Resource Center, which embodies the spirit of Sankofa: going back to the past in order to build for the future. In this space, visitors will find an oral history wall, listening station with a jukebox and a display with artifacts found on the property, as well as display cases that will be curated with changing exhibits.

Genealogy has also returned to Rudisill Regional Library in the Sanford & Irene Burnstein Family Foundation Genealogy Center, restoring an important resource for exploring family and community history with a focus on African American ancestry. Physical genealogy materials and dedicated computers for online research will help scholars, researchers and everyday users uncover family connections and better understand the past.

Through innovative spaces and services, many aspects of the new Rudisill Regional Library are forward-thinking as well. The H.A. and Mary K. Chapman Foundation Maker Space and Audio Lab offers hands-on equipment for experimentation and creation. The Wilbert Collins Computer Lab provides space for technology programs and independent learning, and the ONEOK Literacy Lab supports literacy-focused instruction. The Black Wall Street Sundry, TCCL's first in-library store, sells items that celebrate the library, community and rich history of Greenwood. Two patios, one for children and one for adults, provide additional areas to play, read or relax. A drive-up service window makes library visits more convenient, and meeting and huddle rooms offer areas to convene, brainstorm or study.

In this new library, young visitors have more room to grow, with a children's area nearly twice the size of the former space, interactive learning walls, activity centers and an expanded collection. Teens also have their own zone with books, lounge seating, a Wi-Fi bar and an oversized Everbright board.

The return of a library to Greenwood reconnects a present-day community with a tradition of public library service that stretches back more than 100 years. Come and be a part of this new chapter by exploring all that Rudisill Regional Library has to offer!

Descubriendo la magia de la Lectura con TCCL

Escrito por Ana Davis, asistente bilingüe de servicio al cliente, Biblioteca Regional Martin

La familia y la escuela desempeñan un papel fundamental en el desarrollo de nuestros hijos, especialmente durante sus primeros años. En esta etapa, cada cuento, canción, rima o historia que compartimos con ellos puede convertirse en una oportunidad para aprender, imaginar y descubrir el mundo que los rodea.

Leer es bueno para grandes y pequeños, de eso no hay duda, la literatura infantil es una de las herramientas más bonitas y valiosas para acompañar ese aprendizaje; leer desde pequeños no solamente ayuda a desarrollar el lenguaje y la comprensión, sino que también despierta la imaginación, fortalece los vínculos familiares y puede ayudar a los niños a construir su propia identidad. Por ejemplo, cuentos, fábulas, canciones infantiles, trabalenguas, rimas y otros juegos tradicionales forman parte de una riqueza cultural que se ha trasmitido de generación en generación, un libro puede ser el comienzo de una gran aventura para que estudiantes de primaria empiecen a leer independientemente y se enamoren de la lectura. Hoy, muchas de esas historias y tradiciones también encuentran un espacio en los libros infantiles, donde los niños y familias pueden descubrirlas y disfrutarlas juntos.

Books To Treasure es un evento que TCCL celebra cada año con el propósito de destacar el poder de la literatura infantil e inspirar en los niños el amor por los libros y la lectura. Cada año las bibliotecas de la ciudad y condado de Tulsa invitan a todos los estudiantes que cursan el segundo grado a participar en esta celebración. Con el paso del tiempo Books To Treasure se ha convertido en una tradición muy especial para muchas escuelas y familias del condado de Tulsa, pues todos estos pequeños reciben un ejemplar gratuito de un preciado libro ilustrado, la oportunidad de obtener su propia tarjeta de biblioteca y la posibilidad de conocer al ilustrador en persona y que les firme sus libros.

Este año, la invitada de Books to Treasure es la reconocida ilustradora Oge Mora, quien compartirá su creatividad y experiencia con las familias de nuestra comunidad el viernes 6 de noviembre a las 6 p.m. en la biblioteca Regional Hardesty, donde hablará sobre su libro Saturday titulado en español Sábado; una historia sencilla, pero conmovedora, que encantará a cualquier padre o madre agobiado. Las magníficas ilustraciones en collage seguramente harán que Oge Mora vuelva a ser ganadora a otro premio Caldecott, como lo fue en el 2019 por Thank you, Omu! en español ¡Gracias, Omu!, y al final la misma ilustradora estará firmando los libros a todos los pequeñitos. Esta es una oportunidad increíble para que los niños sean testigos de la creatividad y la pasión que se invierten en ilustrar un libro, y para conocer a una ilustradora en persona. Y quizás, para algunos de estos pequeños este encuentro sea también el comienzo de su propio interés por dibujar, escribir, contar historias o convertirse en un ilustrador.

Books to Treasure existe desde 2003 y cuenta con el patrocinio de la Fundación Anne y Henry Zarrow desde sus inicios. Durante los meses de septiembre y octubre los encargados de la sección infantil de las bibliotecas de TCCL suelen visitar las escuelas para hablar sobre el ilustrador y destacar la importancia de la lectura y sobre todo del mundo mágico que hay en las bibliotecas. El beneficio que atrae la literatura infantil es inimaginable y si es bilingüe es mucho más. El contacto frecuente con los libros puede ayudarles a fortalecer su vocabulario, y la ortografía, también les ayuda a mejorar su expresión oral y escrita. Cultivar el gusto por la lectura no tiene que ser una tarea difícil ni una obligación, muchas veces, basta con compartir un cuento, visitar las bibliotecas de TCCL y dejar que los niños elijan un libro que les llame la atención o simplemente dedicar unos minutos al día para leer juntos. Para las familias que hablan español e inglés, además, de leer en ambos idiomas puede ser una experiencia muy enriquecedora. Acercar a los niños a la literatura tanto en español como en ingles les permite mantener un vínculo con nuestro idioma y, al mismo tiempo, acompañarlos de manera natural en el aprendizaje de una segunda lengua. TCCL puede ser un excelente lugar para comenzar, y en la biblioteca Regional Martin encontraras una amplia colección de libros y recursos en español para niños y adultos.

Un libro puede ser el comienzo de una gran aventura, enseñarles a nuestros hijos a disfrutar de la lectura es mucho más que enseñarles a reconocer palabras. Es abrirles una puerta hacia nuevos mundos, personajes, culturas e ideas, y TCCL está aquí, para guiarte en la construcción de un futuro lleno de grandeza para tus hijos.
